Adjectives

Adjectives are words that are used to describe or modify nouns or pronouns. For example, red, quick, happy, and obnoxious are adjectives because they can describe things—a red hat, the quick rabbit, a happy duck, an obnoxious person

Types of Adjectives

Coordinate Adjectives

Coordinate adjectives are small groups of adjectives that band together to modify the same noun. They're separated by the word "and" or with commas. Here are some examples:

- She wore a pink and yellow top yesterday.
- It was a bright, sunny, and glorious morning along Tybee Beach.

Demonstrative Adjectives

Demonstrative adjectives point to "which" noun or pronoun you're speaking about. These four words will help you spot demonstrative adjectives:

- this
- that
- these
- those

Descriptive Adjectives

The most common of the adjectives are descriptive adjectives. They're generally what we envision when we imagine a word modifying a noun. They give the noun a quality or attribute. This takes us from "the brother" to "the evil brother." Or, we learn more as we progress from "the daisy" to "the perky daisy." Here are three sample sentences:

- The silly dog rolled around in the filthy mud for hours.
- She's such a nice cashier.

Indefinite Adjectives

You can also have indefinite adjectives. Similar to indefinite articles, these adjectives point to non-specific items. Be on the lookout for these token words to know you're hot on the trail of an indefinite adjective:

- any
- few
- many
- no
- several

Here are some sample sentences:

- I don't want any backtalk.
- Do you have many openings?

Interrogative Adjectives

Interrogative adjectives pose a question. They need a noun or pronoun by their side. In this category, be on the lookout for these words:

- what
- which

- whose

Let's look at some examples:

- What colour do you want to paint the cottage?
- Which kimono do you want to order?

Possessive Adjectives

These labels are pretty handy, huh? We're about to learn possessive adjectives show possession. Easy enough, right? Here are the key players in the possessive adjective realm:

- his
- her
- my
- our
- their
- your

Let's look at some examples

- Is that their Ferrari?
- Don't touch our Bugatti.

Predicate Adjectives

With the exception of some possessive adjectives, all the examples here are attributive adjectives. That is, they come before the noun they modify. However, things get a little more complicated in the land of linking verbs. Common linking verbs include:

- am
- is
- are
- was
- were

Adjectives that pop up after the linking verb are known as predicate adjectives. For example:

- She is smart.
- We are rich.

Proper Adjectives

Proper adjectives are capitalized adjectives derived from proper nouns. A proper noun is a specific name for a person, place, or thing.

Here are some examples:

- I adore Japanese food.
- She's going to a Shakespeare

Quantitative Adjectives

- She has two children.
- In the near future, I hope to have six puppies.

Sequence Adjectives

They use the appropriately named ordinal numbers as ordinal adjectives. For example:

- This is my fourth doughnut.
- He ate the third hot dog.
